

Library Outreach Services are Available

The rich collections of the Cornwall Public Library are available to you through our Library Outreach Services, a free, fast and convenient way for homebound patrons to borrow library materials. The service is available to anyone who is unable to get to a library because of age or disability. A phone call, email, or letter will bring a fresh supply of library materials to your doorstep within a week.

Free delivery of library materials to the homebound

Outreach services are by necessity and limited to the homebound patrons who have either physical or mental limitations that do not allow them access to a library, and who reside within the Library's service area (the Cornwall Central School District). Deliveries will be made by a member of the library staff or a volunteer, and will be made to a private home, nursing or retirement home, or adult daycare center.

Materials available through outreach include all materials that would be circulated through normal library practices. The loan period will be determined by materials selected for a particular delivery. All fines and fees associated with lost and/or damaged materials apply. Frequency of delivery will be on an individual basis to be mutually determined by the library and recipient of services.

All patrons using Library Outreach Services are required to sign an Outreach Program Policy Agreement, accepting responsibility for proper care of all library materials checked out to them. Termination of services will result with failure to adhere to the Outreach Program Policy Agreement.

How To Order:

Contact the Library by phone, email, or U.S. Mail with your requests. You can order a variety of material including books, magazines, music CDs, DVDs, and books-on-CD.

How To Return:

Call 534-8282 (or email) to arrange for a pick-up. Give your name, complete address, and phone number. The Library will pick up your returns and, if desired, bring you the latest materials you have requested.
