

Stephanie Wolf is a freelance fundraiser with over 25 years in the nonprofit community. For the past 10 years, she has run her own consulting business in Cornwall. Additionally, Stephanie works as a substitute teacher in the Cornwall School District. She holds a BA from Dickinson College and a MA from Penn State. Stephanie volunteers with the Cornwall United Methodist Church, is a member of Friends of the Cornwall Library, served as an adult literacy volunteer tutor, and is involved with her children's activities in the Cornwall Schools, Cornwall Little League, and Boy Scouts of America. She also enjoys hiking, reading and spending time with her husband, David Reel, and their children, Allison and Spencer.

Stephanie feels that the Cornwall Public Library is a very important component of our community—contributing to the quality of life of all our residents. The library offers activities and learning opportunities for all ages regardless of income. Stephanie and her family visit the library weekly and appreciate the friendly and helpful staff and feel the library offers a wide selection of material and activities for all ages. Stephanie would like the library to continue to be a valued resource in our community and be flexible to respond to our community's needs while maintaining financial integrity.
